Applicant's arguments filed 12/21/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant reiterates their former arguments. Applicant suggests that evidence was presented in the declaration of Dr Comer however it is unclear what evidence beyond the statement that other irritant responsive genes and promoters were known in the art. The declaration does not list any such genes or promoters but merely points to two journal articles that were not provided. Applicant has argued that the standards of Lilly don't apply because the claimed invention is a method, however applicant must show possession of the invention be it a method or product. Further, applicant would be attempting to "reach through" the instant assay to claim possession of unknown constructs as applicant's definition of "irritant responsive... construct" literally encompasses unknowns.

Applicant's arguments have been persuasive to show that the subject matter of claim 8 is allowable. It is clear that applicant had possession of the reporter portion of the construct even if the generic promoters were not shown to be in applicant's possession.

Claim Objections

Claim 8 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-8 remain rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Applicant claims using "a skin equivalent comprising a irritant responsive reporter gene construct" but the specification lacks description to convey that applicant has possession of the claimed invention. Applicant identifies 2 genes as being "irritant responsive" which is insufficient to describe an entire genus, i.e. "irritant responsive gene(s)" particularly since applicant intends for the phrase "irritant responsive gene" to encompass unknowns.

The written description requirement for a claimed genus may be satisfied through sufficient description of a representative number of species by actual reduction to practice, reduction to drawings, or by disclosure of relevant, identifying characteristics, i.e., structure or other physical and/or chemical properties, by functional characteristics coupled with a known or disclosed correlation between function and structure, or by a combination of such identifying characteristics, sufficient to show the applicant was in possession of the claimed genus. See Eli Lilly, 119 F.3d at 1568, 43 USPQ2d at 1406

A “representative number of species” means that the species which are adequately described are representative of the entire genus. Thus, when there is substantial variation within the genus, one must describe a sufficient variety of species to reflect the variation within the genus. On the other hand, there may be situations where one species adequately supports a genus the genus could not be defined by function because function only disclosed what chemical structure did rather than what the chemical structure was. The Court went on to state “A description of a genus of cDNAs may be achieved by means of a recitation of a representative number of cDNAs, defined by nucleotide sequence, falling within the scope of the genus or of a recitation of structural features common to the members of the genus, which features constitute a substantial portion of the genus. Lilly, 119 F.3d at 1569.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
